41 PERCENT OF MEN WORK FOR EXPENSES

Many Chances for Self-Help Offered at Middlebury

DEANS EMPLOYMENT AGENCY

28 Percent of Women Students Earn Part Expenses

Many varied and odd forms of employment are offered to students at Middlebury as a means of meeting at least a part of their college expenses, it was disclosed in an announcement from the Deans of both the men's and women's colleges, yesterday. The statistics gathered showed that over 41 per cent of the members of the Men's College and 28 per cent of the students in the Women's College, had secured self-help through the employment bureaus conducted by Dean Wiley and Dean Ross. It was also stated that a larger number than had usually applied were securing aid through the various scholarships offered to worthy and needy students.

Middlebury, situated as it is outside of what is commonly known as the industrial belt, has been able to offer only a few positions other than those in the college. In past years it was stated, many of the men desiring self help had secured employment at the mill, but the present industrial depres-

DR. J. L. BARTON '81 HONORED BY GREECE

Middlebury Graduate and Trustee Decorated by High Greek Order of the Redeemer

Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., L L D., a graduate of Middlebury in the class of 1881 and a trustee of the college since 1895, was presented on January 9 with the Gold Cross of the Knights of the Royal Order of the Redeemer, in recognition of his great work for the peoples of the Near East. Dr. Barton is Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and chairman of the Near East Relief.

The Gold Cross was conferred on Dr. Barton by Dr. John H. Finley, acting in behalf of King Constantine of Greece. The order of the Redeemer is the oldest order of Knighthood in the Near East, having been founded by the Assembly of the Hellenes at Argos in 1829. The Gold Cross is the grade usually conferred by the Greek sovereign on public servants of the distinction of cabinet ministers.

Dr. Barton was born in Charlotte, Vt., in 1855 and prepared for college at Beeman Academy, New Haven, Vt. He graduated from Middlebury in 1881 and from Hartford Theological Seminary in 1885. He was ordained in the same year and was sent as a missionary to Harpoot, Turkey. From 1889 to 1892 he was director of the Eastern Turkey Theological School and he later became president of Euphrates College. He has written many religious books: "The Missionary and His Critics", "The Unfinished Task", "Daybreak in Turkey", and others. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Upsilon Fraternities.

Dr. Barton is the third Middlebury graduate to have received a signal honor by a foreign government within the past few years, Professor H. P. Williamson de Visme '96 having been awarded the Cross of the French Legion of Honor and the late Hon. A. Barton Hepburn '71 received the highest honor ever conferred upon an American by the Japanese government.

N. Y. ALUMNI TO HAVE ANNUAL DINNER FRIDAY

The Middlebury College Alumni Association of New York City will hold their annual banquet at the University Club in New York, Friday evening, following the meeting of the Board of Trustees. The list of speakers as announced by the committee will include President Paul D. Moody, Professor Herbert Shipman, Professor Charles D. Hazen, Professor Charles S. Baldwin, and Professor V. C. Harrington who will give an illustrated lecture on the college. According to present plans Albert F. Gollnick, '22captain of last year's 'varsity football team will speak on, "Athletics at Middlebury."

EIGHT NAMED ON DEBATING SQUAD

Three Veterans From Last Year's Teams

Triangular Debate Scheduled for March 24—Hamilton Coming March 31

'Varsity Debating Squad

Gollnick '22	Parry '24
Adams '23	Bassett '25
Lawton '23	Cooley '25
Klimm '24	Savitt '25

Meeting last Thursday afternoon in the Old Chapel, the faculty members of the Debate Council, consisting of Professors Abbott, Harrington, Kline, and Davison, announced that the men named above had been selected as members of the varsity debating squad. There will be two teams, each consisting of three men and an alternate. The committee of selection have not announced the make-up of the teams, but they will be selected from the squad.

Three Debates Scheduled

The present schedule calls for three debates, two to be held in the Mead Memorial Chapel, and the third contest against the U. V. M. debaters in Burlington. The debate with Hamilton is on the card for March 31 in the Mead Memorial Chapel. The triangular debate will be held March 24.

In announcing the candidates selected for the debating teams, Professor Kline, who read the report, declared that those who had not been chosen could be of valuable help to the team by assisting in the gathering of material, as well as by participating in the practice debates to be held. Professor Kline urged the freshmen men who had tried out for the team to aid in this work, stating that the experience to be gained would be of great help to them in future contests for places on the debating teams.

Among the eight men selected, but three veterans of last year's championship teams remain. Adams '23, who has shared the Wetherell prize for the past two years, captained the team against the U. V. M. representatives last year. Klimm '24 and Parry '24 were on the team that debated the St. Lawrence forensic representatives last year at Canton.

Among the new men, Gollnick '22, and Lawton '23 are the only upperclassmen represented, although several members of the three upper classes tried out for positions on the team. Of the three freshmen chosen, Bassett '25 has shown great keenness in analyzing the question, while Cooley '25 has shown marked ability in developing the argument. Savitt '25 likewise did well in the try-outs.

Attractive Program in Mead Memorial Chapel

GENEROUS WITH ENCORES

Responds to Applause Despite Severe Cold

By H. G. O.

But a few years ago, in a shambling Temple of Art on Broadway, New York, otherwise known as the Metropolitan Opera House, there occurred an unusual and astonishing event, one entirely without precedent in the realms of music and having little likelihood of succession by virtue of its marvelous display of genius. It was during the course of a Sunday night Concert at that famous institution that Marcella Sembrich appeared in the triple role of pianist, violinist and singer, demonstrating to a rapt and delighted audience that she was not only the foremost singer of the world, which was an established fact, but also a pianist and violinist of virtuoso ability. For Christine Nilsson's singing of the Bach Gounod "Ave Maria" Madame Sembrich furnished a violin obliggato, then played a Chopin Mazurka on the pianoforte, and lastly sang an aria herself; all with such exquisite musicianship, depth of sentiment, perfect mechanical mastery and charming grace that her triumph was immediate and unmistakable. Madam Sembrich, who is recognized as the legitimate successor of Adelina Patti is no longer engaged in delighting her audiences but prefers to pass on to other vocalists the secrets of her own inimitable art.

The triumph won by Hulda Lashanska last Thursday evening afforded ample evidence of the fact that Madam Sembrich is the eternal artist, in teaching as well as in singing, and both teacher and pupil have reason to be proud of the cordial reception extend-

ST. MICHAEL'S TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Last Home Game of Season in Gymnasium This Evening—Winooski Five Is Strong Aggregation

St. Michael's basketball quintet invades Middlebury territory tonight, to close the season of games to be played on the local court. From the past performances of the Winooski five it is expected that one of the best and most exciting contests seen on the local floor this year will be witnessed.

Blue To Use Same Line-up

While Coach Brown has not made any definite announcement as to whom he will use in this game, it is expected that the same line-up will play as in recent games, with a possible shift in the center position. The present combination while not having succeeded in trouncing any of their opponents this season, has shown a marked degree of team work, and the outlook is for success tonight when they start against the Purple.

Ryan and Captain Leonard will be retained at guard, with Hardy and Rich filling the forward positions. A battle for center position will be made though, with Reinbrecht and Timberman as participants, and Coach Brown has not decided whom he will start.

'Varsity Leaves Tomorrow for Clarkson

Daily practices have been held, Coach Brown believing this to be the only way to keep his men fit for the five remaining games on the card. The 'varsity will leave tomorrow for Pots-

President Paul D. Moody left today to attend the annual mid-year meeting of the Board of Trustees to be held in New York City Friday. INSURANCE SUBJECT OF VOCATION TALK

Joe Peck '98 Tells of Opportunities in Business

Insurance Salesmanship May Be Highly Remunerative Work

Joseph A. Peck, of the class of '98, outlined the insurance business to an attentive audience in the assembly room of Chemistry Building, Monday afternoon. Mr. Peck combined ability of a fluent speaker, with that of a clear thinker gave one of the best of the vocational lectures thus far presented.

Mr. Peck began by enumerating a few of the many forms of insurance, to give some idea of the breadth of the business.

Opportunities in Salesmanship

"There are two kinds of work in the insurance business," he said, "work on a salaried basis, and work on a commission basis. The clerical work on a salaried basis is not as stimulating or as independent as the work of the salesman. The selling end is the productive end. Here are the real opportunities for a college man. At first, the salaries are not high; in fact, not as high on the average as in general commercial selling; but these positions are valuable to the beginner, giving him a steady income while he learns the business and leading him to something better, as general agent or broker on commission basis. The most important salaried jobs are those of experts on certain forms of insurance.

"In selling on a commission basis, success depends partly on the form of insurance sold, partly on the community and the competition offered; but chiefly on the ability of the individual. In order to be really successful, an insurance salesman must keep in contact with the people, be always optimistic and agreeable, and try above all to serve the interests of his clients. The work is intensely interesting and stimulating, and the opportunity for development of initiative is unlimited, there being no end of special problems to deal with. The salesman's duties keep him out-of-doors much of the time. On the whole it is a work which conduces toward good mental and physical health for the individual.

"The work of the insurance broker differs from that of the ordinary agent in that the broker represents no single company but rather is a representative of the people, selling insurance of any kind and for any company and receiving practically the same commission as the insurance agent.

No Special Training Required

"The insurance business is unique since a man may enter it without pre-

Middlebury Outing Club Team Wins Over Vermont, Ottawa And Williams—Dartmouth First

'VARSITY GATHERS 8 POINTS

Robinson '22 Second In 220-Yard Snow-Shoe Dash and Harvey '22 Is Fourth In Cross-Country

The twelfth annual winter carnival of Dartmouth College ended its three-day session last Saturday night with the host returning to the victors column by a bare two points lead over the crack McGill University of Montreal winter sportsmen, while Middlebury occupied third place having gathered eight points to her credit throughout the meet. Vermont tied with Ottawa's sole representative for fourth place, and Williams brought up the rear, her team being unable to make any score.

Without the advantages of a ski jump, other than that improvised by Coach Morey and the Outing Club on the hill in back of the Chapman estate, the attainments of the Middlebury team are remarkable. Cole '22 led in points gained, due to his placing first in the snow-shoe cross-country, while Robinson added to Cole's points by taking second place in the 220 yard snow-shoe dash.

Cole Wins Snow-Shoe Cross-Country

The final day opened with Dartmouth in the lead with nine points to her credit, while Middlebury held second place with five and McGill third with four. These points had been gathered in the ski cross-country and in the snow-shoe cross country which was meant for two miles. The course in the latter event, led into many obstacles, one of which was the necessity of passing under a freight train, which had been side-tracked for the moment. In this event, Cole of Middlebury led the field, crossing the finish line fully a minute in advance of Anderson, the star McGill cross-country man. Harvey '22 placed fourth in this event, and was just a short distance behind Hadlock of Dartmouth who finished third.

The finals in the 220 yard ski dash event followed the ski proficiency events on Saturday. Ski proficiency is judged upon the grace and skill with which the performers guide themselves in a twisting course between poles down a hill and come to a stop. The McGill outfit took first place in this event and tied for third place, but in the ski dash got only a second, while Dartmouth took all the other places, the well known Dartmouth star, "Johnny" Carleton winning in fast time.

In the finals of the snow-shoe dash of the same distance, Middlebury and Vermont each had one man and McGill two. In this event, Robinson passed Mitchell of Vermont who had been running in second place, and finished just a short distance behind Anderson of McGill.

112-Foot Ski Jump

Greatest interest was manifested in the ski-jumping contest, due to the fact that Dartmouth had recently erected a new jump. "Tommy" Frost of Hanover, a freshman at Dartmouth, upheld the record, leaping 112 feet, while Labelle of Ottawa, the sole representative of that institution, ran

Senior Organization

The experience of the senior class in attempting to arrange a class sleigh ride several weeks ago was unfortunate, not only in its immediate results but possibly in the restraining effect it may have upon further plans to instill a lasting and effective class spirit which will pave the way for strong alumni associations. Very likely in the last few weeks before Commencement, the class of 1922 will come together in interested support of its graduating week activities, but surely the seniors must appreciate that whole-hearted and valuable class associations which result in more valuable alumni connections can not be worked up in a few weeks. They can be established only after a longer process of unification in a common interest. It is indeed time that the men and women of the graduating class be brought now more closely to a consideration of their privilege in promoting a successful senior week and a realization of their duty to the college in organizing as an alumni body.

We hope then that the officers will consider methods of uniting the entire class and will evolve a definite program with the purpose of arousing enthusiasm which will demand one hundred per cent participation by the members in class functions both as undergraduates and as alumni. Each 1922 graduate must be brought to a full realization of what the college and his class has meant to him, and more important he must be impressed with the importance of his duty as an alumnus to his alma mater. The ways and means of accomplishing these ends are not impossible. We would suggest the continuation and improvement of regular class meetings, the serious consideration of some such informal class gathering as was vainly attempted several weeks ago, the promotion of interclass athletic contests and if possible the organization of the class in support of some college movement which is bigger than the confines of the class in its undergraduate sense. This last suggestion offers immense possibilities to the seniors to be of real service to the college.

But whatever method is used the fact remains that Middlebury classes have not yet grasped the significance of the role which resolves itself upon them in their undergraduate and also in their graduate days. It is the duty of this year's seniors to begin immediately upon a comprehensive program of class activity which will make 1922 one of the most interested and helpful classes ever graduated from Middlebury.

Y. W. C. A. Bazaar

The institution of an annual Y. W. C. A. Bazaar so auspiciously inaugurated last year and which it is hoped may meet with a similar success on Friday night of this week, is especially to be commended. In the first place the cause for which it is given is universally felt to be a worthy one. It makes the yearly delegation to Maqua possible for, without this effort on the part of the local organization, the expenses of the Middlebury delegates could hardly be met. Instead of a mere unfamiliar name, the delegation does much toward making Middlebury a living factor among the colleges assembled at Maqua, while the delegates themselves are the recipients of certain peculiar benefits which could not otherwise be obtained. These are, in turn, to a greater or less degree brought back to the organization and the college.

The second consideration which makes the continuation of such affairs as the bazaar advisable, is the fact that there is hardly another opportunity offered during the college year, where so great a number of the Women's College may work together toward a common end. Too often the end in view tends to disintegrate rather than unify the women of the college. We are running round in a circle and bumping vainly against each other, rather than progressing in a more orderly fashion. On an occasion such as this where time and effort are willingly given, and the nature of the work such that only by cooperation can tangible results be obtained, a wholesome spirit is naturally engendered. Why not keep this spirit alive?

41 PER CENT OF MEN WORKING FOR EXPENSES

sion has closed this type of work, with the result that those who were working there called upon Dean Wiley for employment in other forms of work. At first it was thought that it would be impossible to create any new positions, but by making several changes in the various staffs, arrangements were finally made to give most all of the applicants at least part time employment.

Several new positions were created in the department of college publications and in the inauguration of messenger service, whereby all the departments in college have the services of a messenger to send and deliver reports from one department to another. This has provided steady employment for five men who work regular hours each day.

120 Positions For Men; 85 For Women

At the present time approximately 120 positions are offered to members in the Men's college, while about 85 positions are open to applicants from the Women's college.

It has been the custom to give to members of the entering classes the preference in work connected with the several dining halls operated by the college. Twenty-three women and 21 men are employed in waiting on the tables, while 20 others in both colleges are employed in the kitchens.

Other renumerative work for the men includes such employment as janitors, preachers, musicians, clerks in the various offices, stenographers, house work, pressing clothes, farm work, operating sales agencies of various sorts, photographers, monitors, power plant operator, attending furnaces, library attendants, tutors, surveying, and a few positions are offered such as night watchman, mail carriers, assistants in the laboratory, hotel bell boys and chimer.

Women's Work Chiefly Clerical

Students in the Women's College, outside of the work already mentioned, have employment chiefly of a clerical nature, while many are doing various

Winter

In wintry times, in northern climes,
I miss the July heat,
I lose my love for buckskin glove
And ever frozen feet.
While others seek the winter's bleak
Their folly I deride,

And I'll be satisfied.

And the best of it all is that Hugo modestly admits that the family is a small one.

They May Show Us Their Rock Pile

We are filled with high glee on the announcement that the Blue is, after all, going to cross bats with the Green in Burlington this spring. Of course it would be unreasonable to hope for anything better than a long range view of their heavily guarded greensward, but we are looking forward to the train and trolley rides.

But What If the "Flyer" Is Wrecked, Jim?

Now that the season of formal dances is about to burst into perennial bloom, H—sagely observes that he is "sure of getting to three anyway", viz. our own ball, the Junior Prom and Senior Ball.

Which reminds us, in passing, that this is about the best time ever to fulfill that long over-due movie date. (Quick! Where is that College catalog?)

Putting it economically, this is the season when we anxiously await the declaring or passing of annual dividends on our respective investments.

Will the contest never end?
At movie shows, wherever one goes,
They're the conversation's trend.

We ate one pie and, we cannot lie,
It wasn't what we thought it.
It tasted punk, but we lack the spunk
To let on where we bought it.

At this palsied, last-four-months stage of our seeking to solve the After Graduation What? riddle we are looking for the doctor, lawyer, teacher, garage man, gardener or shopkeeper who has something beside the "Don't go into my business" solution.

MAQUA BAZAAR IN GYM TONIGHT

Y. W. C. A. to Provide Entertainment For Benefit of Middlebury Delegation to Maqua Camp

A multitude of hearts, balloons and confetti, practical articles and attractive novelties, music, entertainment and a plentiful supply of food, ice cream and candy are some of the attractions promised for the Y. W. C. A. Bazaar which is to take place Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the McCullough Gymnasium.

The opening feature of the entertainment, a "Spring Dance" is being arranged by Misses Madeleine Gaylor and Kathleen Kirby and will star the latter. She is to be supported by a ballet consisting of Misses M. Merritt, H. Dickson, M. Tomasi, J. Bennett, D. Taylor, M. Loukes, B. Gaylor and M. Broomell. This will be followed by a dramatized song "Bon Jour, Ma Belle" co-starring Margaret Billings and Dorothy Douglas, whose talents have previously been demonstrated to good advantage.

The third number on the program which is to be known as "The Curtain Act" will feature Madeleine Gaylor and Edris Thayer. The management of the bazaar announces that the act was booked immediately upon the fulfillment of its obligations with the January Follies, and that it will without doubt reduplicate all former successes.

"Cinderella in Pantomine" the final act of the program, has been greatly elaborated since its former appearance. The cast includes Polly Broomell as Cinderella; Helen Sheldon, the Mother; Gertrude Weller and Ruth Nelson, the Sisters; Madeline McDonald the Prince; Madeleine Gaylor, Godmother; Marion Willey, King; Marion Janes, Queen; M. Tilden, K. Mix, Anne Littlefield and M. Baldwin, Ladies of the Court; W. Walsh and F. Bolger, Pages; K. Kirby, M. Merritt and J. Bennett, Fairies.

Hearts and valentines are to form the key-note of the decorations, the arrangement of each of the five booths being carried out in accordance with the general scheme. The grab-bag will take the form of a huge upright heart, parcels being delivered through an opening in the center. Balloons and confetti are to be universally available and Fitzpatrick's orchestra will furnish music during the evening.

The bazaar is in charge of Miss Ruth MacArthur '22 who is directing the work of the general committee and the various subcommittees. The proceeds are to be used for the Maqua fund.

him a close second with his leap of 105 feet. Carleton, Dartmouth's star performer, was third.

The Middlebury team failed to place in the ski relay for 880 yards, McGill winning by a wide margin with Vermont second and Dartmouth trailing.

Had the ski and snowshoe obstacle races been counted, Middlebury would have advanced their total points to twelve, and McGill would have been the winners in the meet, due chiefly to their ability in this branch of winter sports. Robinson of Middlebury took second, and with these points would have been high point man for the Blue and White representatives. Vermont collected third place in both of these events. The reason for the points not being counted was stated by the officials to be due to the fact that they were events chiefly for entertainment, being held between the trial ski jumps and the actual contest.

The official summary follows:—Ski dash, 220 yards, Carleton (D), Foss (McG), Forbush (D), time 44 1-5 seconds; ski cross-country, Carleton (D), Bowler (D), Desbarets (McG), time 46 minutes, 44 3-5 secs.; ski proficiency, Sherrad (McG), Carleton (D), Glenn (McG) and Stewart (D), tied for third; ski obstacle, Edson (D), Green (W), W. W. Edlund (V); ski jumping, Frost (D), Labelle (O), Carleton (D); ski relay 880 yards, McGill, Vermont, Dartmouth, time 3 min., 44 secs.; snowshoe obstacle, Anderson (McG), Robinson (M), Mitchell (V); snowshoe dash, 220 yards, Anderson (McG), Robinson (M), Davis (McG), time 42 seconds; snowshoe cross-country, Cole (Midd), Anderson (McG), Hadlock (D). Total score, Dartmouth 25 1-2, McGill 23 1-2, Middlebury 8, Vermont 4, Ottawa 4, Williams 0.

DR. C. C. KENNEDY VESPERS PREACHER

Stratford Ct. Pastor Speaks In Mead Chapel

Former Army Chaplain Tells of Necessity of Ceaseless Spiritual Change

Dr. C. C. Kennedy of Stratford, Connecticut, chose as his subject at Vespers, Sunday, the verse from Revelations, 21:5—"Behold, I make all things new."

Dr. Kennedy compared human life to a long sea voyage: the slightly changing, daily life is similar to ocean travel when no land can be sighted; the new problems which enter our lives may be likened to the bustle and preparation aboard ship when the horizon first appears; and finally, when we finish our journey and reach port, we look back upon the voyage, filled to the brim with many joys and sorrows.

Although mankind is against sudden changes and new ideas come slowly to most of us, Dr. Kennedy showed that nevertheless there are changes particularly of a spiritual nature, continually going on.

"We must each do all we can to assist toward the organization of the Kingdom," said Dr. Kennedy. No one sect or class can accomplish the realization. It must be based upon a new spiritual change in every person.

Dr. Kennedy finally stated that there is something worth while prepared for every one by Christ. We are consequently working with Him, but with human tools. "God as a Father makes all things new, and sets that same task for us."

During the war, Dr. Kennedy was Senior Chaplain of the American forces in the British Isles. He worked there in association with President Moody.

The students of Professor Longwell's classes enjoyed a chicken pie supper and social evening, February 8. The supper was served in cafeteria style and was in charge of Merna Hicks '23.

POTRATZ TO INTRODUCE JAVELIN THROW THIS YEAR

First Intercollegiate Representative in This Field

"Barney" Potratz, Middlebury football and track star, will introduce the javelin throw into all inter-collegiate contests to be held this year. According to information available at this time, Potratz is the only inter-collegiate representative in this field, and it is expected that the feat will be chiefly an exhibition. While a student at the South Division High School in Milwaukee, Potratz distinguished himself in this sport. The introduction of the javelin throw into the track contests is looked upon as the starting point for the development of the event in future years.

vious special training. All that is required is plenty of perseverance and the ability to work for oneself. Being a new profession it is not overcrowded. Several colleges are now offering courses in insurance and there is a big field for men who will raise the standards of the business.

In regard to profits in insurance, Mr. Peck went on to say, "The sale of life, health, and accident insurance is the backbone of the business from the standpoint of profit. There are hundreds of men making from ten to fifty thousand dollars a year as insurance brokers. All companies have agents who are making more than the president of the company himself and, at the same time, are more independent. Many of the big companies have prize contests among their salesmen and the significant fact is that the leaders in these contests hail from moderately small cities.

LASHANSKA PLEASES IN SONG RECITAL

ed the visiting artist; the former that all her noble ideals of the art are being so finely perpetuated; the latter that the splendid privilege is hers of inspirational contact with one of the great musicians of time.

To Madam Lashanska has been granted that preeminent virtue and prime requisite of a singer, a natural voice of purity, depth, and vibrant richness, capable of expressing the whole gamut of emotions. Her lower register, that Armageddon of most sopranos was astonishing in its luscious, velvety smoothness and full resonance. The transference from one register to another was accomplished without the slightest break in the quality of tone, a feat all too rare. Moreover the frequent high notes were delivered with perfect ease and security, totally devoid of that distressful scooping which is sometime mistaken as adding to the emotional content of a song. Mrs. Lashanska's employment of both the mezza voce and the mezza di voce was highly commendable for technical perfection and artistic discrimination. It was noticeable that the singer possessed the secret of coloring her tones to suit the mood of the song she was delivering; a fact especially evident as the somber, subdued quality employed in Gretchaninoff's "Steppe" was succeeded by the gentle tenderness and delicate calm of Wolff's "Fairy Tales".

None but a truly versatile artist could have emerged unscathed from combat with the immense difficulties of style demanded by such a program as Madam Lashanska's, but so instantaneous was the adjustment of mood on the part of the singer, so vivid the projection of atmosphere and personality, that the listener was carried along with the torrent of feeling, only dimly realizing the variety and intensity of the emotional experience undergone.

The first group of strictly classical style of the old school afforded ample opportunity for the display of colorful and gorgeous tone, replete with powerful fortissimos and limpid soft notes of great beauty. Madame Lashanska's command of pure legato was little short of marvelous, and especially in the stately measures of the Lecchi aria whose lengthy phrases demanded absolute control and surety of technique was her control of floating tone and a wide range of dynamics exhibited. She modeled the plastic melodic line as a master sculptor moulds a frieze. Handel's "Sommi Dei" was bestowed with a certain aristocracy of interpretation which betokened the patrician versed in the lore of bel canto tradition. There was as little place for the vulgar in Madame Lashanska's art, as in that of Christina Rossetti.

The manifest delight of the audience at the conclusion of the German group proved the artist's wisdom in restoring them to their true position, of which they have so long been deprived. Schumann's sprightly "Er Ist's" was endowed with a capricious delicacy of sentiment which proved quite entrancing. Probably the best work of the evening, technically speaking was accomplished in "Dei Lorelei", a dramatic song requiring big breath support and impassioned utterance. In response to the insistent applause of the audience Macdowell's "Thy Beaming Eyes" was sung as an encore.

Quite thrilling in its vivid fervor and impassioned sweep was Madame Lashanska's delivery of "The Steppe", a song peculiarly suited to her needs, which she gave with irresistable eloquence. It was interesting to note how extraordinarily the singer was able to vary her tones as the mood of the music varied, commencing with a sombre chant and crescendoing to an immense climax of great power and brilliance. Tschaikoffski's "Serenade" was imbued with a delicate archness well suited to the sentiment of the piece.

There are few singers of the present day concert stage who can do effectively the music of Edward Grieg, for his songs demand a peculiarly sympathetic gift, but Madame Lashanska proved her right to a place among the elect by her rendition of "The Dream". At the end of the group Staub's "L'Heure Delivieux" was granted as an encore.

Erich Wolff's "Fairy Tales" was a delicate cameo of the singing art, exquisitely tender and lovely in its miniature beauty. The Dvorack number received a somewhat more impassioned interpretation than is customary, and while some might have wished for a less dramatic utterance, yet the purpose of contrast to the preceding song was fulfilled.

Special tribute should be paid to the two songs of Werner Josten, the accompanist, which Madame Lashanska graciously placed on her program. To the great delight of the listeners "Annie Laurie", and "Long, Long Ago" were given at the conclusion of the program.

Madame Lashanska's art is an oasis in a desert of sandy singing, and the more praise does she deserve on account of the fact that she was suffering from a severe cold, and sang only because she did not want to disappoint her audience.

Mr. Josten's work at the piano provided a fine setting for the songs, and his support was gracefully acknowledged by Madam Lashanska.

forms of house work such as cleaning, caring for children, sewing, doing laundry work, and catering. Opportunities are also offered in tutoring, correcting papers, as monitors, and as well clerical work for the college. There are a few who are employed as assistants in the laboratories, as church organists and others who are working for private families in the village.

Students in both colleges are employed by the college for the Chapel Choir, but this work is dependent upon their willingness to be in constant attendance at all choir rehearsals. Tryouts for these positions are held at the beginning of the college year.

Prizes in Latin, Greek, Public Speaking and Debating, as well as in prize essay work are held each year. These awards are offered to encourage excellence in their respective departments, and prove of great help to those who are seeking financial aid, although that is not the chief purpose of the awards.

Those who desire to secure employment are requested to fill out an application blank in the office of Dean Wiley for the men and Dean Ross for the women, and when a suitable position is secured the applicant will be given an opportunity to prove their ability in the work assigned.
